

Are you a stroke care, education or research professional/organisation or a person affected by stroke?

If so, the launch of the UK Forum for Stroke Training (UKFST) Endorsement Initiative this October will affect you.

The UKFST will support the development of stroke training and education UK wide through the Stroke-Specific Education Framework (SSEF). Applications for endorsement will be made through the UKFST website.

- Benefits to individuals - endorsement will improve service and care for people affected by stroke and for those working in stroke care at all levels through developing transferable education and learning programmes and presenting a coordinated, strategic approach to workforce development.
- Benefits to endorsed organisations - education and training will feature on the UKFST's national stroke-specific website database, searchable by potential students and attendees. Organisations can apply to endorse all their training and education - from one day sessions to events, internal workshops to postgrad courses.
- Get involved – by becoming a reviewer of applications for endorsement. We are looking for individuals with an interest in stroke care, including those with experience of stroke themselves or through a friend or relative, those involved in the field of stroke care and/or research, health, social, community, independent or voluntary care services professionals and those experienced in education or accreditation.

To find out more, contact brian.brazier@stroke.org.uk